

Diamondback moth

Although all life-stages can be found year round, this pest is most abundant during late spring/early summer

This pest survives between growing seasons on brassica weeds such as wild radish

Optimal spray timing - Use established economic thresholds to guide control decisions

Due to resistance issues, rotate insecticide groups to reduce selection pressure

Critical monitoring period for this pest